Need to Know

Research is focused during the Dawes Roll timeframe, and not generalized genealogy.

Indian Territory was also occupied by non-natives.

A direct ancestor is a parent, grandparent, great-grandparent, etc.

The more information that is provided, the more accurate the research will produce.

The Choctaw Nation Genealogy Department provides ancestry information from the Dawes Roll to assist individuals in verifying lineage for CDIB applications and family histories. Applications for the Dawes Roll were accepted between 1898 and 1906 from tribal members living within tribal territory in what today is southeastern Oklahoma. You must be a descendant of someone enrolled with a blood quantum by the Dawes Commission to prove tribal heritage.
